

Basic Topics to Train New Shepherds

To Use in Languages that Lack Paul-Timothy, Train & Multiply[®], Shepherd's Storybook, or similar materials in your language.

How to Use this List of Topics

Mentors first meet with novice shepherds who report progress and problems of their flocks.

Mentoring takes place at all levels of leadership. Mentors may be Regional Coordinators, trainers, church planters, shepherds, or new leaders who coach novice shepherds.

Mentors and novice shepherds together choose from the study topics listed below, ones that fit current needs of each shepherd's flock. Shepherds then prepare and teach the studies to their flocks:

- Read, tell or dramatize Bible stories. If a story is too long, then only present parts of it.
- Let children help.

Example of dramatization: A Narrator says, "Hear what God told the first man in Genesis 3." Others speak in their own words the parts of Voice of God, Adam, Eve and Serpent. A Narrator briefly summarizes the parts of the story that are not spoken.

- A shepherd helps believers plan to carry out the listed tasks.
- Each shepherd helps his flock to start new flocks. He uses these studies to train their new leaders.
